Future Ambitions: AMBITIONS I am a freshman in high school driven by a single goal: earning the BSA's Hornaday Silver Medal. After high school, I am planning to attend college. I will figure out my true ambition as I move into my sophomore and junior years. Throughout high school, I will choose electives that support my interests. I will also do internships to help me understand my interests better. Some of my current interests are architecture, law, and criminal justice. I also believe that my experience in Scouting - being a member, leader, and natural resource conservation project leader will help to shape my future decisions. While I pursue my college degree(s), I will be an active Scout volunteer helping Scouts and the BSA, specifically sharing my Hornaday Award experience.
